Religion and State – What Model of Secularism Should Kazakhstan Choose?

In contemporary world there are two main models of secularism, one is the French laicism model, which is 'rigid' and intends to isolate religion to private sphere, another model is the 'soft' Anglo-Saxon secularism model, which is 'liberal' and creates a free atmosphere for religious beliefs of all people both in private and public spheres. 'Soft' model is more suitable to freedom of religion and freedom of conscience. Taken into account the global processes, as well as Kazakhstan's foreign and internal policy strategies, the 'Soft' anglo-Saxon model of secularism should be seen as the best choice for Kazakhstan.
